NEW-YORK.

The SENTINEL. No XIX.

IT is indeed amazing, that any Man, who thinks at all of the Public, should be indifferent about it; it is more amazing, that any Man, who has a Stake in it, can avoid thinking of it, or be without Zeal for it; but it is most amazing, that great Men, Men of Dignity and Fortune, of Splendor and Title, all which can only be secure whilst the Public is so, should not always, and in all Countries, be upon perpetual Guard against their own Ruin and Debasement, and continually studying to support public Liberty, which must support them.

Lukewarmness, from such Men, would seem incredible, if it had never happened; and is infamous whenever it happens, as well as the Effect of the most gross Blindness and Infatuation. Yet thus lukewarm were many of the great Romans, even when they saw Cæsar's Sword already waving dreadfully over them. Well might Cicero say of them, as he does, with just Severity and Contempt, Ita Stulti sunt, ut, amissâ Republicâ, Piscinas suas salvas fore videntur: "They were such Fools to "conclude, that, tho' the Republic were lost, "their Fish Ponds would remain secure." Fools indeed! When Liberty was gone, no Man could be secure, nor any Man's Possessions. This Discovery, which a Man might have made at first, they made afterwards; when their not having made it sooner, only served to upbraid and torment them. They indeed felt it, and felt it with a Vengeance, under the Triumvirate, when a Price was set upon their Heads, and their Possessions and darling Fish Ponds, seized by the Tyrants who succeeded their Friend Cæsar, whose Clemency was not perpetuated with his Usurpation. This, too, was very easy to have been foreseen; as also the future State of their Families, which were all persecuted; most of them cut off by the following Tyrants, without any Exception, or Favour to the Descendants of such as had helped to establish the Tyranny.

Here is a Lesson and Warning to all Nations, especially to Men of Name and Figure amongst them, how dearly they ought to prize public Spirit and Patriots: How much it becomes and behoves them to possess and cherish that Spirit; and how nearly it imports all Men to love their Country. It is only Self-Love generously applied; and he who loves himself judiciously, will certainly love the Public and Liberty. It is moreover virtuous and honourable; and is entitled to solid Fame, to the Affections and Praises of all Men. What other Motive needs there? He who has not this Spirit may, perhaps, be a harmless Man; but he is a very bad Citizen: He who dislikes or despises it, is an Enemy to his Fellow-Citizens; and must expect a natural Return, that of Hate and Infamy. Is Life, or any Thing in Life, worth enjoying upon such melancholy Terms? A virtuous Man may bear Dislike and Obloquy, because he knows that he deserves it not: But Detestation abroad, accompanied with Guilt within, and occasioned by it, is a heavy and a doleful Lot! What does the World produce to attone for it? Guilty Greatness is, at best, but a great Burden and Reproach.

The Love of our Country is such an amiable Quality, indeed such an important Duty, attended with so many Recommendations to enforce it, that it is a Pity, as well as a Wonder, it should not be common. How natural it is, to love and respect a Man of this Spirit! It melts one into Compassion and Sympathy, and fills me with Reverence and Esteem, when I find, in my Reading, such a Character as that of the Sieur Baptist du Mesnil, Advocate General in France, in the Time of that Monster in a Diadem Catherine de Medicis. He loved his Country so passionately, that it broke his Heart to see its Misfortunes. This Testimony he has from Monsieur De Thou, that grave Historian and Patriot; and this Testimony is a glorious Reward for so virtuous a Grief, for a Grief so pious, and so honest an End.

Cicero used to ask himself, what Men would say of him when he was gone; and was more afraid of the Judgment of future Historians, than of all the common Prate and Censure of the present Times. This was agreeable to the good Sense of Cicero. A Man who loves Fame, will labour to deserve it: If he be indifferent about it, it is a shrewd Presumption, that he is equally indifferent about his Morals: If he utterly despise it, he does as surely despise the Means of acquiring it, even Virtue and worthy Actions. Fame is always the sure Portion of the Patriot, first or last (for sometimes he is eclipsed for a while); and a glorious Portion it is. Flatterers and Parricides, with the great and small Vulgar, may traduce him; but this only confirms his Merit, and adds to his Renown. The best Lot that can befal the Parricide, is to be forgot: A very comfortless Lot! Especially to a Man who has Cause to wish for it. It was a laudable Passion for Glory in Cicero, when he grew jealous, lest the Services done by Pompey for the Republic, might seem to Posterity to surpass his.

FROM THE NEW-YORK GAZETTE, JULY 4.

[The following LETTERS which came to the Printer, with the Table of the Stamp Act, Post paid, from Williamsburg in Virginia, some Months ago, are supposed to have been sent by a Gentleman who has been long eminent for his Abilities and Knowledge of the Law.]

To the PRINTER of the NEW-YORK THURSDAY's GAZETTE.

SIR,

AS I thought an alphabetical Table of the Stamp Duties mentioned in the Votes of the House of Commons, would be better adjusted, and more intelligible to Persons subject to that Duty, than a Publication of the Resolves themselves, I framed the inclosed Table for that Purpose, which our Printer understanding, desired my Copy to publish in the Virginia Gazette. I sent it to him, with the inclosed Introduction, which he promised to print; but the G——r hearing of it, called on him, and expressly forbid him to publish any Remarks or Observations on the Matter. Upon which it was returned to me. I have since consented that he shall have the Table itself to publish, as I think it necessary we should all have the earliest Notice of the Chains forging for us; by those, whose Protection, and indeed, Indulgence, I think we are by all the Rules of Law, Justice and Compassion, as well as their own Interest, fully intitled to, and justly deserving of, more especially when we find their Liberality and Encouragement extended so far to the Indians, by whom his Majesty's Subjects and Dominions here have so severely suffered. But that it may not be said or pretended, that we patiently crouch under our Burden, as no Complaint or Apprehension of our suffering under so unconstitutional a Pressure, can appear from our Press, which, in several Instances I am glad to find is not the Case to the Northward; I have inclosed you a Copy of both, in Hopes of seeing them published in your Press, from which, as well as all other Free Presses in America, I hope to see other Remarks move to the Purpose than mine, which you should not have been troubled with, if it was not to declare, in the only Manner we can, that we are as sensible of the Injustice done us, as any other of the Plantations or Islands in America can be; and that whatever Regard may be paid to the Liberties of the Subject in Great-Britain, the English Subjects in America are in every Respect considered as intitled to none of them; but as to them, Magna Charta may be justly ruled as it was by one who had got the Power in his own Hands, Magna Farta.

ANGLO-AMERICANUS.

To the PRINTER of the VIRGINIA GAZETTE.

Mr. PRINTER,

BEFORE your Press is stopped, which I doubt will shortly be the Case, you should publish in your Gazette (as should be done in every other Gazette, News-Paper, and Pamphlet, printed in every Part of the British Dominions in America) the inclosed Table, by which the Inhabitants will find how great Regard the British House of Commons has for their Fellow-Subjects, exposed to such Incursions and Rapines of the Indians, and their more faithless Allies the French, for so many Years past, that we were thereby first stripped of our Gold and Silver, and when obliged to substitute Paper in it's Room (which might have tolerably supplied our Necessities) that has been by sinister Practices, first extremely depreciated, and now almost annihilated; and when reduced to the extremest Necessity, we are yearly to find a larger Sum of Sterling Money, for procuring common Justice in our Courts of Law and Equity, than this Colony could ever have raised in their most flourishing Circumstances. I have heard that in Magna Charta it is said, Nulli negabimus, nulli vendemus aut differemus Justitiam vel rectum. But at this Rate, we must not only be obliged to buy, but at such a Price, that not one in a Hundred will be able to pay the Purchase Money; poor Americans! we may well say we are, Procul a Jove, oh! could we add, et procul a fulmine. What, not one Patriot! None that thought the Sir-name of Americanus worth acquiring, by stepping in, to divert the fatal Thunderbolt! We are at length reduced to a worse Condition than the Israelites.

"And Pharoah commanded the same Day the Taskmasters of the People and their Officers, saying, ye shall no more give the People Straw to make Bricks as heretofore, let them go and gather Straw for themselves: And the Tale of the Bricks which they did make heretofore, you shall lay upon them, you shall not Diminish aught thereof." Exod. V. Ch. 6, 7, 8 Ver.

There was Straw in Egypt, but no Sterling Money to be gathered in Virginia, and I am afraid there is no Moses or Aaron at Hand to deliver us. Had a reasonable Tale of Hemp, which they have expressed so great a Desire of our cultivating, been laid upon us, I would willingly have contributed my Proportion; and I don't in the least Doubt, but most of my Countrymen would have joined with,

Your humble Servant,

ANGLO-AMERICA[illegible]

LONDON, May 2.

Extract of a Letter from Quebec.

"We have strange Sort of Proceedi[illegible] this Government. One of our J[illegible] sent from hence to Montreal to act in that city, having committed a Military Officer [illegible] soon was attacked in his own House about [illegible] Night, by six Men, with Crape over their [illegible] and Hands, and was saluted with, "Wh[illegible] D—l made you a Justice, and never cropped [illegible] Ears?" and immediately cut off his Ears, slit his Nose, and left him for dead. Our Governor is gone up to Montreal, in order to find out the Offenders, and bring them to condign Punishment, and a very considerable Reward is offered for their Discovery."

Extract of a Letter from Quebec to a Merchant in London, dated December 16.

"At present here seems to be a very strong Contest between the Civil and Military. Great Jealousy prevails, and it is believed Persons are employed to bring an Account of what is said. Paiquinades are very frequent, and many of them have come up by the Post from Montreal. One was found pasted up in the Market Place at Quebec, of which I have sent you a Copy. Several Councils are held, but the Objects of them are kept an entire Secret.

"The Governor and Council have issued an Order for lodging the Troops in private Houses. A commissioned Officer of or above the Rank of a Captain, is to have a good Bed-chamber, Dining-room, or Parlour, furnished, with one Cellar, entirely to his own Use, and the Use of the Kitchen in common with the Family. Every commissioned Officer under the Degree of Captain, is to have a good Bed-chamber, with the Use of a Dining-room or Parlour, Kitchen and Cellar; and every common Soldier is to be furnished with good Quarters, and be permitted to warm himself in common with the Family. Besides which, every commissioned Officer is to have a Cord of Wood fornished him per Week, which will cost him 7/6 to 10/. the Cord, but for which he is to be charged no more than 5/0. The Houses in which the Troops are to be quartered, consist, for the most part, of no more than four Rooms, including the Kitchen, for which the Inhabitants pay a Rent equal to what you pay near the Royal Exchange, London, so that it is really hard upon them to be obliged thus to let the Officers have their Rooms gratis. On the Canadians, in particular, it is very hard, most of them having their Houses destroyed in the Bombardment, to rebuild which they had borrowed Money, and had nothing to depend upon, but the letting them out in Lodgings. The Engliſh have ſent a Letter to the G—— of C——, wherein they repreſent their diſtreſſed Condition, and propoſe to repair the Barracks, till his Majeſty's Pleaſure be known, &c.

"Advice is juſt now come from Montreal, that Things are arrived there to ſuch a Height, that the Inhabitants never dine, nor even ſit in their own Houſes, without Piſtols before them. When a Soldier enters, and demands a Pound of Sugar, or any other Thing which dare not be denied him, they preſent a Piſtol to him to prevent his committing any Outrage, and hold it in that Poſture till he retires. People dare not even go out into the Street in the Day Time, without Arms. Two Officers are taken up on Suſpicion of being concerned in Mr. Walker's Affair, of which I wrote you Word in my laſt. [See the Letter above] A Serjeant, his Wife, and a common Soldier, are alſo taken up on the ſame Account, and are brought down to Quebec for fear of a Reſcue at Montreal. There is no fear of their reſcuing the Officers there, as the Inhabitants would murder them if they could do it privately, and the Soldiers will not obey the Officers in any Thing. It is greatly feared the Troops in general will either lay down their Arms, or join the Canadians and Indians, who it is feared, have ſome Intentions to attempt to repoſſeſs themſelves of the Province, there being 800 or 1000 of the latter aſſembled at Frontiniac, who murder all they meet with, without Exception, though they give out they are going againſt the Niagaras, another Party of Indians, with whom they are at Variance. The Arrival of theſe Indians ſo near Montreal has thrown the Inhabitants into the greateſt Confuſion, and may probably end, not in an Indian War, but a Provincial One.

Copy of the Paſquinade paſted up in the Market-Place at Quebec.

"By good Intelligence from New-York, we can aſſure the Public, that the Society for the Encouragement of Arts and Sciences has ſent there, to be forwarded to Quebec, as a Preſent to that diſtant Colony, a high finiſhed Picture, executed by a maſterly Hand, and expecting it to be fixed up in their Town Houſe, to ſtimulate the Inhabitants to a Defence of Trade and Commerce, which is ever founded on Liberty, and Property, and adds, that our Houſe of Legiſlature ſits on Wool Bags for the ſame Purpoſe.

"The Principal Figure, as large as Life, a Madman, endeavouring to aſcend a Pile of Books, lettered, Engliſh Laws. * Six Aſſes, beſſowing his praiſe, and aiding him. In his left Hand Magna Charta, much torn and abuſed, which he ſwears to deſtroy as ſoon as he can gain the Summit. Behind the Six Aſſes is Britannia fainting: Time tries to comfort her by pointing to the Madman and the Pile of Engliſh Laws, ſignifying that the Madman will tumble before he can deſtroy the Scroll that is in his Hand; near Britannia is Liberty, much frightened and weak, endeavouring to take Leave of her: Time prevents her, by pointing with his left Hand to Judges and Civil Courts. On the Back Ground is a Ship bilged on Rocks; Caſks, Bales, and other Emblems of Merchandize, floating down with the Tide of Deſtruction.

"The oppoſite Corner, is filled with a Group of meagre Bodies, called Louis's Outcaſt, grinning at the Scene, in like Manner as Milton deſcribes Death's Grin in his Paradiſe Loſt."

* Suppoſed to mean Sir M——y C——a is C——l.

QUEBEC, June 6.

In Juſtice to the Merit and diſtinguiſhed Generoſity of the Troops at Montreal, you are deſired to publiſh the following Paragraph of a Letter tranſmitted to the Governor and Council, who cannot ſufficiently applaud the Behaviour of the Officers and Soldiers upon the late melancholy and trying Occaſion.

Montreal, May 29, 1765.

"Yeſterday, in the Forenoon, we waited in Copy, Brown, That us, upon Enquiry, we found the Behaviour of the Soldiers had been ſo unlike for, and neceſſary to, the Safety of the Town, we thought it neceſſaire upon us to make them a Preſent, in order to replace the Handkerchiefs they loſt during the Time of the Fire, and begged that he would ſo-ſo with the other Commanding Officers of the Corps, what Time would be moſt convenient to meet us, in order to conſult about the intended Rewards.

"In Conſequence of our Letter to Capt. Brown, he, with Captains Hope and Johnſon, waited upon us, and thanked us, in the Name of the Soldiers, for our Intentions; that, ſenſible they had done their Duty, and pleaſed with the Governor and Council's Approbation of their Conduct, they renounced any pecuniary Reward, as there were but too many neceſſitous Sufferers, who required the Aſſiſtance of Government; as to themſelves, they had their Pay to ſupport them." Signed, ADAM MABANE.

BENJAMIN PRICE.

By Order of his Excellency in Council,

HEN. KNELLER.

BOSTON, July 1.

Funerals without Mourning or the giving of Engliſh Gloves is become ſo faſhionable, that there has been but one Burial for many Months paſt, and that a Negro, in the old faſhion way. We are much indebted to thoſe Patriots who firſt ſet this Example of Frugality, by which it is ſaid this Town only has made a Saving the laſt Year of near 10,000 l. Sterling. Other Towns and Provinces have copied the Example, and will experience its Utility. It is a Pleaſure to behold what other Savings are made by laying aſide a Multitude of ſuperfluous Articles of Britiſh Manufactures and Britiſh Produce, as without theſe Sacrifices we ſhould have nothing to pay by way of Stamp-Duty.——The Britiſh Merchants and Manufacturers have hitherto had all our Caſh in pay for Articles, ſix-eighths of which are proper Luxury: And if they chuſe to have it go by way of Revenue to Capts. of Guards Coſtas, New Courts of Admiralty with Concurrent Powers, &c. &c. rather than to receive it in Pay for their Manufactures, in the Name of Wonder let them be pleaſed. Without going into one Branch of Manufactures ourſelves, we may for one barter Part of the Amount of what goes annually for the Purchaſe of ſuperfluous Articles be furniſhed with every Thing really neceſſary; and if in Conſequence of this Retrenchment Two Millions of People in Britain are left without Employ, they will then have Leiſure to inquire into the Conduct of thoſe who have deprived us of the Means to procure Luxury, and the Propriety of Meaſures calculated to enlarge the Revenue at the Expence of Trade.

We hear from Dunſtable, that about 14 Days ſince a Flaſh of Lightning ſtruck 15 Sheep (lying down under a large Oak Tree, within a very ſmall Diſtance from a Houſe) dead upon the Spot, and the Tree not broke.

KILLINGLY, June 17.

On Monday laſt, the Houſe of James Bruce of this Place, was ſtruck with Lightning; which entered in at the Roof, near the Chimney, took off ſeveral Boards and a Rafter, which were ſplit into ſmall Splinters, and ſome of them carried ten or twelve Rods diſtant from the Houſe; the Lightning then running down a Poſt, entered a Room where eight Perſons were ſitting, tearing up the Floor next the Chimney, ſplitting a Sleeper adjoining the Hearth, in ſo ſmall Pieces, that none could be found exceeding three Feet in Length, and two Inches in Diameter, without hurting any Perſon, except a Woman, who received a ſmall Wound on her Leg, by the Lightning, which ſoon turned of a purple Colour, ſwelled much, and was extreme painful. A Man was ſitting in the Garret, ſeparating Hemp from Tow that was intermixed; and the Tow was ſet on Fire, without his receiving any Harm. No Perſon in the Houſe was ſenſible of hearing the Thunder, tho' they imagined they heard ſome uncommon Noiſe.—— Two Hogs that lay near the Houſe were killed.

NEWPORT, July 1.

Capt. John Thurſton arrived here laſt Saturday, in 19 Days from the Weſt-Indies. Before he ſailed he received Information of a free Trade being opened at Martinico and Guadaloupe, for all Sorts of North-American Produce, Pork, Beef, Bread, and Flour, excepted.

NEW-YORK, July 4.

We are informed from Jamaica, that the Difference between the Governor and General Aſſembly of that Iſland, aroſe in the following Manner: The Carriage of one of the Members of the Aſſembly, which had brought him to the Houſe, was arreſted by the Marſhal, for a Debt of 50 l.—— The Houſe reſented it, and impriſoned the Marſhal. The Governor immediately prorogued the Aſſembly, whereby the Marſhal was releaſed of Courſe.

When the Aſſembly met again, their firſt Work was to impriſon the Marſhal, upon which the Governor diſſolved the Aſſembly.—The ſame Members were all re-elected, and when they met, immediately impriſoned the Marſhal, and the Governor again diſſolved them.——Since which we have received no further Advices.

ANNAPOLIS, July 15.

Sunday laſt Died here of the Small-Pox (at the Houſe of her Brother Mr. Chief-Juſtice Bordley) Mrs. ANNE DENTON, Widow, a Gentlewoman of a Pious and Exemplary Life and Converſation.

Thurſday laſt arrived in Severn, the ——, Capt. Spencer, from Briſtol, with a Number of his Majeſty's SEVEN-YEAR-PASSENGERS.

Yeſterday arrived the Ship Dolphin, Capt. Robert Johnſton, from Gibraltar, in Five Weeks. And,

The Brig Darlington, Capt. Henry M'Lachlan, in Seven Weeks from London; but we have not yet heard any good News that he has brought.
